Salmon Memorial Series Comes To Montreal for First Time

"The shaping of Psychiatry by War" will be the topic of an address by Brig. John Rawlings Rees, M.D., F.R.C.P., in Moyse Hall this evening at 8.30.

Brig. Rees, consulting psychiatrist to the British Army, has been chosen Salmon Memorial Lecturer in Psychiatry for 1944. His address here tonight will represent the first time that one of these famous lectures has been delivered in Montreal. This lecture, one of a number to be delivered on this continent has been arranged locally under the auspices of McGill University with the cooperation of the Montreal Medico-

Continuation Committee Proposed As Means Of Further Function

The "so-called" N.F.C.U.S. conference to be held at London, Ontario, over the Christmas holidays, should set up a continuation committee, said a proposal of the Student Labor Club at a meeting yesterday afternoon. This proposal was passed because the conference is not believed to be an official N.F.C.U.S. conference, and therefore the gathering of delegates from some ten Canadian universities at the conference should, through a continuation committee, allow further discussion of an official revival of N.F.C.U.S.

Proposed functions and purpose of the National Federation of Canadian University Students were outlined by a member of the Student Labor Club executive. Among these were: post-war reconstruction, rehabilitation of veterans into the university, extension of research in the university, direction of employment for students, physical training and international student cooperation.

Post-war reconstruction, according to the outline, would include: an increase in the number of scholarships in order to further extension of university education regardless of ability to pay. It would also deal with the social position of the professional the extension of facilities in and the improvement of the curriculum and educational methods.

Literature Society Holds First Meeting of Season

The McGill English Literature Society will hold its first meeting of this season Saturday evening at 8:30 at the home of Theo Mayer, 580 Cote St. Antoine Road. The purpose of the meeting is organizational, and new members will be enrolled, the executive announced last night.

The Literature Society was formed as the medium through which students, particularly English honors students, might discuss different trends in literary fields, the executive stated further, and these discussion meetings are led by prominent members of the literary world in Montreal. The society expects to have at least four such meetings in the coming term, and the speakers will be selected at this first meeting, reported the president of the society.

Around the Globe

Ottawa: The King Government will make no move to extend the life of this 19th Parliament which will normally expire on April 16, Prime Minister Mackenzie King assured Parliament yesterday.

London: The Red Army, turning the corner around the southern end of Lake Balaton in Hungary, has advanced within 35 miles of Austria.

Paris: United States 3rd Army troops poured across the Saar river at six points yesterday, captured two-thirds of the French border city of Sarreguemines, and closed tighter their siege of shell-blasted Saarbruecken.

Rome: Smashing German resistance, British and Polish troops have firmly established a bridgehead across the Lamone River, four miles southwest of Faenza, posing a new flanking threat to enemy troops in a bulge southeast of Bologna.

Inter-University Debating League Members Named

Bishop's and Loyola Are McGill Opponents In the Coming Debates

A meeting was held last night in the Union Music Room at which 11 prospective debaters offered their views on the resolution "Resolved that the salvation of Canadian democracy demand the implementation of the C.C.F. programme."

The judges were Miss Madeline Bodier, and Mr. Boris Berbrier. All those present also submitted a ballot indicating the order of their preference. The judges and those present agreed that four of the speakers were outstanding. Accordingly, these will represent McGill in the Inter-University Debating League. Jim Hemens and Dick Blanchfield will form the negative team, and Sherwin Raymond and Isidore Rosenfeld will form the affirmative team. The first debate in the league will be on the above resolution, the affirmative team debating at McGill against Bishop's University, and the negative team debating against

English Minister Gives Second Talk

Rev. Green Compares Christian Experience With Falling in Love

The Rev. Bryan Green, visiting English clergyman, broadcaster and lecturer, in an address in the Union Ballroom yesterday, spoke about "the experience of the living God as revealed in Jesus Christ."

He compared the Christian experience with three different ways of falling in love. To some people it comes suddenly; for others there may be several attempts; again it may be a steady, gradual process in one's development from childhood on.

As with love, there are three characteristics of the Christian experience. First, one knows and realizes fully that something has happened in his life; secondly, it is definite and specific, related to one person; thirdly, it is an experience which transforms one's life. This transformation should not produce

CHRISTMAS CHOR PRACTICE

A practice of the Christmas Carol Choir will be held today at 5 p.m. in the S.C.M. House. All members and any others interested are asked to be present. There will be only two more practices.

The choir directed by Reverend C. H. Powles, will sing at the annual Carol Service to be held in Divinity Hall on December 17. This service is sponsored jointly by the S.C.M. and the I.V.C.F. All proceeds will go towards I.S.S.

ANNUAL SMOKER TONIGHT GRADS FETE STUDENTS

Annual Grad-Undergrad Banquet at 6.30 p.m. In Union Grill-Room

52 Students of All Faculties Will Hear Costigan and Pye

52 students of all faculties will be the guests of an equal number of members of the Graduates' Society tonight at 6.30 p.m., at the annual Grad-Undergrad banquet in the Grill-Room of the McGill Union. Speakers at the event will be John Costigan, president of the Students' Society, and Jack Pye, president of the McGill Union.

Planned to begin early because of other events on the campus tonight which will conflict with the after-dinner program, the banquet schedule includes entertainment, songs, and refreshments.

Among the 52 students invited to attend will be the 20 members of the Undergraduate Committee of the Graduates' Society. This committee, founded last year, has functioned under the auspices of Mr. Fraser Keith, last year's president of the Graduates' Society. It has met twice this fall, delegating an entertainment committee to work with an entertainment committee of the Graduates' Society on plans for the banquet.

At the request of the graduate members of the combined entertainment committees, the main speakers will be two students. They are to tell the graduates attending "something about ways in which McGill graduates can extend help and cooperation to the present students of the University."

The list of students invited is as follows:

Arts
Ben Albert
Bernard Drabble
Norman Halford
Edward N. Lawand
Charles U. Wassermann
Science
Michael Blais
Bill Brown

Theory, Practice of Hypnotism Demonstrated by Dr. Raginsky

BY ALAN PORTGAL

A large audience assembled at Douglas Hall last night heard a fascinating and educational lecture by Dr. B. Raginsky on "Hypnotism in Theory and Practice."

Mentioning that he had heard of experiments in hypnotism being carried on by undergraduates of the University, Dr. Raginsky expressed as one of his principal aims in his talk the demonstration of the extent to which such practices may be safely carried out. Comparing hypnotism to a sharp scalpel, he contrasted its use by a skillful practitioner to its use by the experimenting novice.

In answer to questions from the audience, Dr. Raginsky spoke on some of the topics which frequently trouble the layman, namely: who can be hypnotized? Who can hypnotize? What chance is there of the subject not regaining consciousness?

It was emphasized that any normal, sensitive, intelligent, and willing individual can be hypnotized, that anyone who has been shown how, can hypnotize, and that there is no danger of the subject "not waking up." The subject always retains enough of his own motivation to wake himself if anything goes wrong.

Commencing the practical part of the lecture, Dr. Raginsky showed some of the more common methods of testing the susceptibility of a prospective subject, together with demonstrations on how a person may be made to respond to suggestion without actually being "put to sleep."

The superiority of hypnotism over psychoanalysis in certain cases was shown when, to the amusement of the audience, events in the lives of the volunteer subjects were traced back even to the fourth years of their lives. A lucky student was persuaded that in future she would be able to concern

Plumbers' Debaters To Hold Hatbox Discussion

The Engineering Debating Society will hold its second Hatbox Discussion this coming Friday. The meeting will commence at 1:20 p.m. in Room 37 of the Engineering Building. All those interested in public speaking are urged to attend, a member of the executive stated.

The discussions are conducted in such a manner that a few students speak on subjects chosen from a hat. Then the same subjects are further discussed among all the people present.

Through these discussion periods it is the hope that those attending will develop a better understanding in the art of public speaking and gain some experience from these meetings, an executive of the club revealed.

Among topics discussed in a previous meeting were those involving overseas conscription, value of engineering course and other important and interesting questions of the day.

Furthermore the executive has decided to organize several more discussions of this nature in the new year.

Medical Group Hears Lindeburgh

Public Should Be Taught More About Health

"The general public should be taught more about health" stated Miss Lindeburgh, last night before an open meeting at the S.C.M. Medical Study Group.

In her address, Miss Lindeburgh who is the director of School for Graduate Nurses drew a parallel between the work the doctors and the nurses are and should be doing. As the medical profession is a public utility she stressed the necessity of getting better response from the public for early medical attention. "We must give the general public a health philosophy more than the curative one," she said. In bringing out this point she emphasized some of the late Dr. Grant Fleming's teaching which urged for

That this would be the last week in which defaulters could have their photographs taken was the information disclosed to the Daily yesterday by Bob Cox, Graduate Editor of "Old McGill."

The names of those who have not yet had their pictures taken are printed each day in the "Daily", and these people are warned that their pictures will be omitted from the Annual if not taken before the deadline.

No appointments are necessary. Students may appear any day at the Jacoby Studios, 1541 Crescent St.

Arrangements Complete; Arts, Science Students Invite Commerce Faculty

Higgins and Dando Are Guests At Entertainment in Ball Room

Final arrangements for the Arts and Science Smoker which takes place in the Union Ballroom tonight at 8.30 have been completed, revealed Ronnie Stewart, president of the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society late last night. Men from the Faculty of Commerce have been invited to attend this function he stated and tickets for persons desirous of attending the Smoker can be obtained early today.

The Smoker is an annual event and this year will be open to male students of the Arts, Science and Commerce faculties. Guests from the Faculty include Professor Higgins, Secretary of the Economics Department and John Dando of the Department of English.

ENTERTAINMENT

Featured on the list of entertainers for the evening is "Vivi" mysterious Polynesian. She will be revealed for the first time on this continent, at tonight's affair" stated Herb Wonfor, Secretary of the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society. Heading the list will be "Swiftly", comedian and master of ceremonies who has been described as "an old-timer with considerable night club experience". With him will be Helen Taylor who, it is rumored, possesses "a voice as fine as Dinah Shore's, and Joey Hart, accordionist.

Precautions To Be Taken
Ronnie Stewart stated that special precautions were being taken to exclude the uninvited at this function.

"Engineers", he said, "might do well to recall last year's Smoker, as even more stringent and vigorous measures will be taken this year to keep the party exclusive."

Refreshments will be reserved for late comers who have had parades.

SING SONG FEATURE.

"Between refreshment time and the presentation of the floor show, revellers at tonight's smoker will indulge in community singing. Students are advised to bring along

Blue Sunday at Queens

TORONTO VARSITY

Principal R. C. Wallace, of Queen's University, sounded the death knell of the Queen's Drama Guild Radio Workshop when he decreed that the University did not permit dramatics on the Sabbath and cancelled the programme scheduled for a week ago Sunday. In a vain hope that other arrangements with the broadcasting station could be made, the Guild persevered and produced the programme on the Saturday, but as it is impossible to reserve this time permanently, it is feared that the activities of this enterprising group will have to be suspended indefinitely.

In view of the fact that many university students will be entering the radio broadcasting field upon graduation, it is tragic that they should be deprived of this superlative opportunity for practical experience in the business by a narrow and outdated Blue Law. Why should the University, any more than any civic group, object to Sunday broadcasts? The universities are supposedly the home of progressive views and broad ideas. They are supposedly the moulding casts of the citizens of the future.

As a second, and even weaker reason for his ruling, Principal Wallace states that the time for which the broadcasts were scheduled (11.30 p.m.) was too late for the many freshies involved in the air show. He himself, however, states that the question of special late leaves for these girls did not alone decide the issue, and that depending on the merit of the individual girl, special leave might be granted. It would seem that this second objection was merely added in an attempt to justify a canyon-minded view.

It is not our position to judge or condemn the decision of the Principal of Queen's; however, we think that the head of a large and highly respected university should show more sympathy to such an admirable and ambitious project on the part of the undergraduates and not do his utmost to stamp out any and all initiative on their part.

Living in a city where rigorous Blue Laws are in effect, we feel that these enactments are outmoded and indeed singular in the world of today.

Student Government

UBYSSEY

Special committee of the Students' Council to investigate student representation on Council will begin its work this week. The committee hopes to have a complete new governmental set-up ready before election of next year's Council in February.

This action is long overdue. Our nine-man Council was devised for a university of less than 1,500. Now, with registration up to the 2,900 mark and soaring higher every year, UBC's student government finds itself unable to handle efficiently the affairs of so many students.

The students have grown out of proportion to Council. Student executives often do not know who they represent. Students do not know who on Council to see to arrange their affairs. With so many students, councillors are overloaded with jobs to such an extent that few are handled in the right manner.

Materialist Monism

Some people may have found it objectionable that the last two articles of this series have been devoted mainly to negative analysis. I hope that the reader will not despair completely when informed that the next few essays will be even more purely destructive. I too should derive greater satisfaction from the discussion of constructive topics; but there are certain times when a clearing of accumulated mental fogs, soft and comfortable though they may be, is required before further progress can be made. Even Nietzsche has his place in the development of modern thought.

In my last article I brought up the question of the relativity of abstract truth, stemming as it does from self-observed material fact. The scientific validity of this principle that all canons of taste and judgment depend on material or sexual needs—has been thoroughly substantiated by Veblen, among others. When one considers man as an organism continually adapting itself to an environment in order to continue existence, it becomes obvious that tastes, too—i.e. race habits—must follow selective adaptation.

Thus in one sense all serious philosophical or cultural discussion is mere casuistry—concepts are quite meaningless, for they stem directly from combinations and sublimations of the grossly material. And if we want to be really consistent, ideas are never to be considered as causes in themselves—they are merely the intermediate stage between material causation and its effect: while emotions are the meaningless by-product of a conditioned reflex.

In a way modern materialism shows a striking similarity to Spinoza's monistic pantheism (as what philosophy does not!) Spinoza, too, insists on the infinite number of attributes of substance, on the material multiplicity of the universe, just as the materialists do. And again as they, he is not worried by this multiplicity—it must be accepted as it is. But in one vital respect Spinoza does differ from the materialists. He is a philosopher, while they claim to be dispassionate scientific observers. He is seeking to find an ethic—an absolute meaning in life and scheme for living. One must derive positive meaning and emotional satisfaction from the generalized love and complete understanding of the multiple universe as it is. Materialist principle, on the other hand, stops short at the preliminary observations, thereby avoiding the imputation of any philosophical conclusions—i.e. conclusions which are at best only relatively true. In practice, of course, materialism is diluted with many pragmatic and idealist elements, as will be shown in a later article. However, it is our purpose to follow up the principle in its purest form.

In this pure form, scientific materialism has serious philosophical and ethical repercussions. One categorical monistic principle it does maintain, though scientifically—the material causation of everything and consequently the absolute relativity of truth. In Spinoza's case that does not matter, for he has a philosophical scheme for assimilating relativity into a unified and positive concept of life. In the case of materialism, without that scheme, it becomes a corrosive principle which strikes at the root of our whole intellectual standpoint.

A fact which plays a vital part in everyday life is our emotional attachment to ideas, concepts, principles, values. Now we know for a fact that all these are indifferently right or wrong. The element of fervor disappears from the whole thinking process. To take a vulgar example quoted in our last article, no up-to-date student will see the necessity of engaging in fist-fights over Tennyson's absolute value, because there is no such thing. The point is thus not so much that ideas themselves are shown to be intrinsically neither true nor false, as that we completely lose any ground for emotional attachment to them.

NEXT: Repercussions of pure materialism.

In past years, Council has muddled along with its out-moded system. Sincere, but unable to do things right because of the system, our Council has been criticized at every turn.

A study will be made of other university governments. Their experiences will be applied to UBC problems. New ideas will be examined carefully. It will be no hurried change-over. The system that results will be a well-planned government. The committee intends to spend a great deal of time before it submits the scheme to students at a special AMS meeting sometime near the end of January.

Christmas Issue

The Daily's annual Christmas Issue will be published on Friday, Dec 15, and as usual a five-dollar War Savings Certificate is offered for the best short-story submitted. The issue is largely a Feature department publication, and contributions of prose, poetry, and special articles are solicited. The short stories will be judged by a committee of editors; all students except those on the masthead of The Daily are eligible to submit entries.

Contributions must be less than 1500 words in length, typewritten in double-spacing on one side only of each sheet, and must be signed; otherwise they are ineligible for the competition. They need not necessarily have a specific Christmas interest.

All material submitted should be marked "Christmas Issue" and addressed to the Feature Editor, and should be left at the Union Tuck Shop before 6 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 13.

Music for 'Everyman'

The presentation of the old English morality play, "Everyman," offers a wide scope for effective musical background, an opportunity which has often been used to a great advantage, especially by such people as Sir Walford Davies who composed a complete and original score for the drama.

In the present production by the English department, the music has been placed under the capable management of Douglas Clarke, Dean of the Faculty of Music. Dean Clarke has done a great deal of this type of work having written musical scores for many of the plays of Arthur Bryant.

When interviewed about the production, the Dean said that had there been time, he would have liked to give his own interpretation of the setting of the play, but as this was impossible he had succeeded in finding an appropriate score. It is an anonymous piece of 18th-century writing that has been ordered.

ELECTIONS

THANKS
The Editor, McGill Daily.
Sir,—May we, through the medium of your columns, express our congratulations and best wishes to Granville Nickerson on his election as Representative to the Students' Executive Council from the Faculty of Medicine. We wish in addition to thank respectively those who nominated and supported us in the recent elections.

Very truly yours,
E. CLARK GILESPIE,
VICTOR C. GOLDBLOOM,
Med. IV.

THANKS

Dear Sir,—Through this column, we would like to thank everyone who nominated and voted for us as Second Year Representatives to the Red Wing Society.

Yours sincerely,

PESTERING DOUGLAS HALL

Dear Sir,—I wish to bring to your attention certain most annoying practices now being implemented, apparently by certain residents of R.V.C. I refer to the matter of phoning up to Douglas Hall and leaving untrue messages with the porter. I need scarcely add that these messages have been a source of considerable embarrassment to all parties concerned.

Hoping that this intolerable state of affairs will soon be righted, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
INDIGNANT.

CLUBS

INT'L. RELATIONS CLUB

Dear Sir,—There is a club at McGill which is getting very little response from the campus. This is most surprising, because it is a club which discusses matters of vital interest to everyone, and in the long run, it is hoped, will affect society as a whole. This is the International Relations Club.

We are now nearing the end of a long, hard war. It has affected each of us in some way, in at least the curtailment of many necessities, if not by the loss of some loved one. The outcome of the war, and the making of the peace should be a grave concern to every student, because it is we who will be most concerned with post-war prosperity and politics, as it will be largely the college-educated people who will direct the governments, and businesses of the future.

The International Relations Club is a very small organization at present, composed largely of law-students. If more people would support it, the I.R.C. could become a

Mathematics As a Pastime

CALLING ALL JUNIOR MATHEMATICIANS

By Harvey Lowenberg

Were you the brain trust of the geometry class at high school? Or the one who hid behind Susie's curls to avoid that question on quadratic equations?

Anyway, whichever category you belonged to then, you would probably be interested now in a club coming to the fore on the campus—the Junior Mathematical Society, which is hoping to obtain official recognition by the Students' Council when the new constitution has been approved by the members.

The club has been leading a sheltered existence for several years, supported by a few students and encouraged by a few professors. This year a surprisingly large number of students have shown their interest by regular attendance and a keen desire to participate in selecting and carrying out programs, so the club is now venturing out into the open with a program with which it hopes to prove that mathematics is the Queen of all sciences—and a lot of fun!

One of the aims of the club is to present a crude outline of the history of mathematics interpreted as a mirror of civilization and as mankind's common culture, and to show how it influenced his inventions, his economic systems, and sometimes even his religious attitudes.

The plan of campaign includes introductory discussions of topics familiar (?) to most of us, such as geometry, trigonometry, and algebra, and other "new mathematics" subjects less well-known, as calculus, non-Euclidean geometry, and curved space (such as Einstein uses) the study of the atom, social statistics, etc. Pertinent and interesting topics selected by the club members will be included.

Note to all frosh! Probable chance of passing your finals 200 per cent. higher (guaranteed or your money back!) if you attend the first talk of the series on Friday, December 9th, on Arithmetical Shortcuts. Other topics include the problem of Least Area as demonstrated by means of frames and wire figures, and for those who like a little mystery, brain teasers and magic squares will be discussed and ways of solving them illustrated.

If you remember your multiplication tables at all, that's all the maths you need to be welcome at the club. And to you who don't remember your twice twos, welcome also, and who knows, the ability to think logically may earn you an honorary title like "Archimedes" or "Pythagoras".

powerful factor in expressing the opinion of McGill students. It is said that students in Brazil and other South American Universities exert a tremendous political influence. If directed in the right channels, students in Canada could exert some influence, as well. The field of international affairs and post-war reconstruction is one in

Manitoban Please Copy

We pause briefly in our usually self-centred day's occupation to toss a bouquet halfway westward along the C.U.P. chain. Everybody who even glances at the exchanges in The Daily office knows that the best university poetry in Canada is written in the Manitoban; and our personal favorite on that newspaper's feature page is a girl who signs herself P. A. Jenkins and whom we definitely regret never having met. Pat Jenkins' poetry is decidedly good stuff, and it is with pleasure and appreciation that we reprint the following.

Mistaken Pursuit

By P. A. JENKINS

Anguished Lips
And swollen with pain.
Fevered Brow
Wrought in a network of agony.
Tortured Eyes
Lustrous with drugged life.
Oh soul!

Who is this?
Lying broken on a crumbling deserted highway,
The remnant of a carnival just passed.
Echoes of vulgar laughter yet
Cling in the barbed wire
And resound in mouldy crags.
Broken she lies blinded,
Broken forever on a dead deserted road.

They rejoiced in her beauty,
They took both from her
They loved her sweet laughter.
And left her alone.

She revelled in their homage,
She worshipped herself in pride.
For the world of men were hers.
... But the world of men moves on.
And so the echoes remain
And tremble in her ears,
Calling rattling sighs to
Her throat;

In her breast
A million swords.

Discarded wretch of life,
Saturated in life,
Reeking of life,
Hating life.
I pray for you now in your hell,
For you are alone in it,
Alone with millions more.

Red Cagers Score Upset Win To Secure League Leadership As Complete Team Plays Well

Curran and Harms Lead Redmen; Brenhouse Stars for Combines

By BUD MARSH

Displaying their smartest brand of basketball in recent years, the McGill senior cagers smothered Combines under a 46-24 count at the Currie gym last night. The Redmen were never even threatened and won the game going away. Combines could not seem to get started and sorely missed the services of their ace center Cliff Melville.

At the opening whistle, Russ Harms broke away and scored the Redmen's first two points almost before the whistle had died down. A minute later, Curran sank a nice basket to put the McGill cagers ahead 4-0. Both teams then settled down to some careful playing with Steinberg's basket for Combines being followed by a lovely long shot by Shacter.

Play see-sawed back and forth for a while with both teams missing scoring opportunities. Then the Redmen began pulling away: Roth netted two points with Weshler of Combines retaliating. Then another basket by Roth, a basket and a free shot by Rosentzweig, two free shots by Davidson, and a beautiful one-hander by Deacon, all in succession, put the Red team way out into the lead, the score reading McGill 15, Combines 4.

SPARKS REDMEN

THREE STARS

- (1) Russ Harms, for general all-around play and floor generalship.
- (2) Vic Curran, for high scoring, notching nine points.
- (3) Moe Brenhouse, for leading Combines in futile fight with nine points.

McGill Leads

Only during the next few minutes was there any resemblance between the Combines team of last night and the one that had soundly trounced the same Red quintet a few weeks earlier. The McGill scoring spree was broken when Ditkofsky netted a long shot, and play for the remainder of the half was pretty even. The score at the half stood 21-11 in McGill's favour.

The second half was almost a carbon copy of the first half. Harms again opened the scoring, this time on a spectacular passing play, which utterly bewildered the opposition. Next Curran dropped in a lay-up shot, which was answered by a Combine basket. McGill tallied five points in a row. Shacter accounting for four with two quick baskets, and Curran potting a free shot. The scoreboard read McGill 30, Combines 13. The Brenhouse Brigade fought back desperately and managed to stay on even terms for a few minutes, but with only ten minutes remaining in the tilt and McGill leading 35-18, even the most conservative onlookers began to feel that the jinx was about to be broken—the jinx that had held McGill in its grip for the past two or three years whenever they faced these same opponents.

Redmen Scores

Davidon made a lay-up count for two points and followed this up with a free shot. Rosentzweig went all the way up the floor on a solo effort for a basket, Combines coming back on a free shot and a basket. Big Marly Goodwin drew a nice round of applause when he grabbed a rebound, stretched his arms upwards and literally dropped the ball into the basket.

With the game drawing to a close, Rosentzweig, Curran, and Athans completed the Red Team's scoring, and fighting Moe Brenhouse creased the cordage on a shot from center, as the whistle blew to end the game. The final score was McGill 46, Combines 24. One of the outstanding factors of the wide margin of victory was the ability of the Red team to "get the rebounds". Harms and Goodwin were especially adept at this. With more practice and experience big boy Goodwin should prove a valuable asset to the team. It is a difficult task to pick any stars for the McGill squad, as the team played an outstanding game as a unit, with everybody figuring in the scoring. Undoubtedly the game last Friday with St. Lawrence University proved.

Softball Semi-Finals Set To Take Place Tomorrow

The semi-finals of the Inter-faculty softball tournament for the Gunn trophy will be held tomorrow, with all teams concerned being asked by manager Viv Cullen to be at the Gym at exactly the stated time.

The Grad school's victory over Engineering 2 by a 5-4 score yesterday has been disallowed, and a different schedule has been arranged for the semi-final round.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 p.m., the powerful Grad School team will take on Engineering 3 in the first of the two matches, while at exactly 6 p.m. Arts and Science Blacks and Engineering 2 will take over for their tilt. The winners of these games will play the final round next week.

Interfaculty Puck Loop Commences Next Wednesday

Arts and Science Faces Commerce In League Opener

Next Wednesday, the Arts and Science ice squad takes on the Commerce team in the official opener of the Interfaculty hockey league. The game is set to get underway at 12.30 at the Forum. Both these teams have one practice session under their belts so that the league opener, according to the executive, should provide plenty of fireworks.

Two Days

Meanwhile, a packet of good news was disclosed yesterday by Hay Finlay, Athletics Secretary, when he announced that the use of the Forum ice has been obtained for two days a week. Both these periods will be at the 12.30-1.30 hour, with one of them falling on whatever day the Senior team has a scheduled N.D.H.L. game. The other day will be left open on short notice. At present, the Engineering team is scheduled to play the Grads-Law combine aggregation next Thursday.

Neither of these teams has had a chance to don skates and work out as a unit so that in effect, both sextets will be starting from scratch. However, neither of the managers have allowed any grass to grow under their heels and both seem to feel that they have the squad to walk off with the honours.

There are several small details yet to be ironed out by the executives, among them being the problem of obtaining permission for the players on the various teams to be excused from drill. There have been several meetings of the faculty managers at which a set of rules have been drawn up.

The biggest bone of contention

Origin of So-called Puck 'Hat Trick' Related; Term Dates Back to Beginning of Century

Sports terminology contains many odd expressions but none is more strange than hockey's famous "hat trick." Most fans are aware of what it represents—the scoring of three goals by one individual in a single game. Few of them, however, are aware of how it crept into the hockey language, and it took some research work by the Amateur Hockey Association to produce one seemingly sound explanation of the origin of the term.

In 1906 the Montreal Wanderers faced Ottawa's brilliant Silver Seven in the Stanley Cup final. President of the Wanderers was Jimmy Strachan, a fashion plate from spats up to and including his derby hat. Star of the Wanderers was Lester Patrick, a young man who certainly must have felt conspicuous because he was the only member of the squad who did not own a bowler.

De Luxe Derby

series began Strachan treated himself to a $20 super de luxe derby. The then youthful Patrick gazed on it with envious eyes and the enthusiastic president of the Wanderers promised him "If we win the Stanley Cup, Lester, I'll give you the hat."

In the first game Montreal crushed Ottawa under a 9-1 score and sporting a new derby. His hopes Lester was certain that he'd soon be soared even higher when he flashed down the ice in the opening minutes of the second fray to whisk in a goal that raised the Wanderer lead to 10-1. But then things began to happen.

When Seven Made Nine

The Silver Seven rallied in frenzied fashion, pouring in goal after goal. Montreal remained anchored at 10, but Ottawa kept creeping up steadily while the anguished Strachan feverishly batted his derby against the sideboards and excitedly twisted the brim. A few minutes from the end the Silver Seven

BASKETBALL BALLAD (With Apologies)

'Twas a joyous eve in old McGill, the Festival was here. Seconds remained in the cage game, and everyone did fear, For the score was 33-31, St. Lawrence was ahead. When a fighting Redman seized the ball, and forward then he sped.

Three thousand eyes were on him as he dribbled up the floor, Three thousand hands applauded as from his grasp the ball did soar, Three thousand feet were stamping as through the air the sphere did skim, Fifteen hundred throats were roaring as it settled on the rim.

O somewhere the sun is shining, somewhere men are gay, And at old St. Lawrence U, they basketball still play, O somewhere bands are blaring, and somewhere children shout, But there is no joy in the land of McGill, for the blasted ball fell out.

POST MORTEM

The above, although a feeble attempt at wooing the muse, nevertheless contains the essential reason for the defeat of the Redmen at the hands of a fighting bunch of sailors from Canton, that is, "the blasted ball fell out." For Van Wagner's men, the thrilling Festival match consisted of an interminable number of occasions of throwing the ball up, seeing it roll around the hoop a couple of times, only to drop down on the outside of the rim.

The marksmanship of the Red quintet as a whole has improved considerably since the beginning of the season, but the Redmen still messed up a lot of scoring opportunities in the game against the Larries. One thing that aided the McGill men in the Festival game was their smooth ball-handling, while their team play was all that could be asked for in spots. Nevertheless there were many occasions when the Collegians seemed to fall apart, and these lapses will prove fatal as the season progresses unless they are remedied. Van Wagner's stalwarts miss the steady influence of Jerry Leonard's, the dependable guard of last year's team, who is coaching the intermediate cagers this season.

As for the St. Lawrence team, little could be criticized as it was the Brown and Scarlet's first tilt of the year, and the Sailors were not accustomed to playing with each other. Although their team play was ragged in spots, they demonstrated enough individual ability to prove that Coach Merle Livermore will have a pretty good quintet as the season progresses.

PERSISTENCE REWARDED

When a flash came into the Daily office late last night that the McGill Redmen had finally succeeded in trouncing the Combines, and to the tune of a 46-24 score, the assorted members of the sports department could hardly believe their ears. But the Red and White have finally done it, they have done it decisively, they have repaid the Combines threefold for every humiliation they have suffered at the veterans' hands. From here on in it looks like clear sailing, but although the team finally clicked last night, too optimistic a view must not be taken, the Red and White Cagers have a tough schedule ahead of them, and a long road to travel before they can win any championship.

INTERFACULTY INFO

The Interfaculty cage loop has had several interesting and hard-fought matches in the brief period that it has operated so far, and the players go all out in every game. Some of the participants know little more than the fundamentals of the sport, but they make up for what they lack in experience with their fighting spirit and drive. The league has been rearranged from that originally proposed to accommodate new entries. It now consists of three sections of four teams each, and one of three. The first two teams in each section are scheduled to participate in the playoffs after the Christmas holidays.

ODDS AND ENDS

Pot shots. . . . Some of the sailors from Canton seemed to think that the Canadians played basketball pretty rough. . . . Actually it is the difference in interpretation of the rules between the referees below the border and those here. . . . Our men in white are much more liberal as regards bodily contact, and consequently there is a lot of football-like tactics employed by the players. . . . Several of the Red and White cage quintet have remarked about the psychological lift they get when they have a big crowd out cheering for them. Witness their improved playing in the St. Lawrence tilt. . . . Nevertheless that big crowd may have cost the Redmen victory in the Festival game. . . . When they halted the game two minutes before the end to allow the spectators to migrate to the wrestling ring to see Carlos Cortez, the Redmen were really hot, and had a two point lead. . . . The holdup gave the Larries a chance to settle down and they took full advantage of this break to go ahead and win. . . . Most humorous incident of Festival occurred when an enterprising McGill lad walked up to little Gene Maloney after the game, and asked the sailor what the St. Lawrence cheer was. . . . The New York City kid hesitated a minute, then reached into his pocket, pulled out a dollar bill, and waving the greenback in front of him, muttered in a low growl, "C'mon babe."

'McGill Night' at Forum to Feature Army-Redmen Tilt

McGill Night is the official title of the next National Defense

League doubleheader to be held at the Forum on Wednesday night, and to prove that the Red and White supporters will really take charge, members of the Scarlet Key and Red Wing Society will be present, plus a gala group of cheerleaders who will lead the collegians in some spirited yells.

To top of the McGill touch which will pervade the hockey arena, the McGill C.O.T.C. band will be out in full strength to supply some musical diversion as only they can. The Red and White hockey squad takes on the powerful Army team in the opening game, while Navy meets Air Force in the nightcap of the bargain bill.

Hale Possibility

The possibility that Bobby Bell may have Tommy Hale in uniform for this game has not been commented on by any responsible authority, and it is still doubtful whether the flashy forward will team up with his brother George for the Army tilt.

The National Defence Hockey League is having a lay-off this week because the Ice Capades are coming to the Forum. The McGill team should benefit greatly from this rest, for it will give Coach Bobby Bell time to get the team organized for their next game against the

Red Natators Face Tars In Swimming Contests At K. of C. Pool Tonight

Both Squads Evenly Matched; Athans, Kellaway to the Fore

Tonight at 8.00 p.m. the McGill Swimming Club (Men's Section) will play host to the highly-touted Navy natators, who swept the District Inter-services Swimming Meet recently. The affair is scheduled to take place at the Knights of Columbus Swimming Pool on Mountain Street.

This will be the first official competitive event of its kind that the McGill swimmers have participated in this season. The club, as a whole saw some action in the Swimming and Diving display staged at the Community Pool earlier in the year but this was not of a competitive nature. This meet will be an acid test for the Redmen, but with such seasoned stars as George Kellaway and George Athans among others, the team is assured of acquitting itself nobly.

The Navy Swim Squad has seen lots of action this year and boasts of a host of experienced veterans. However, as result of a recent draft, Johnny Loaring and Bob Pearce, both of Olympic fame in other sports, may have moved out and this should prove no little consolation to the McGill marauders.

Notable Swimmers

Many notable swimmers have signified their intentions to take an active part in the contest, among whom are Ted McCarthy, Irwin Fineberg, and Charlie Van Wagner of last year's squad and such promising newcomers as Victor and McLean. Other natators include Randlett, Johnson, Martel and Mahon.

Details about the events have not been disclosed as yet but the following list of events will definitely be on the program: 50 yards free style, 100 yards free style, 50 yards breast stroke, 50 yards back stroke diving, 200 yards free style relay, 150 yards medley relay. It is expected that a few longer distances will also be added to round out the program.

Diving Star

In George Athans, coach Vic Curran has one of the best divers seen around these parts in a long time. George hails from British Columbia, is the present holder of the Dominion Diving Championship, was runner-up in the National U.S.A. Diving Championships, and represented Canada in the Olympics of 1936.

Swimming manager Charlie Van Wagner requests that all Red swimmers report at the pool not later than 7.30 p.m. tonight. Spectators will find it well worth their while to attend this meet since both teams are very strong and evenly matched.

Frish—Well, honey, I must be going now. I hope I haven't bored you too much.

Girl—Not at all. I was an undertaker's assistant once and I'm used to sitting up with the dead!

thuslats who are interested in competing in this competition are requested to hand in their names to their respective section representatives. If there is any difficulty on the part of the contestant as to whom they are to contact for the necessary information, phone Heddle Brown at R.V.C.

Due to the meet, their will not be any life-saving practice next week. However proper notice will be given as to when practices will resume.

Lists will be posted on the M.W.S.A.A. notice board so that all co-eds intending to compete will have the opportunity to sign their names. It has been strongly urged that these names be down before next Wednesday so that no complications ensue because of the neglect of this factor.

Coed Aquabelles to Hold Intersection Swim Contest

"There will be an Intersection Swimming Meet next Wednesday at the Knights of Columbus Pool during the time allotted to the regular swimming workout," it was announced by Heddle Brown, Coed swimming manager last night.

The various faculties and their corresponding years are divided into sections. All en-

Two Scotchmen were watching a football game; one had a bottle, the other had only a thirst. The bottle-man was talking very largely about his knowledge of the game and what a fine player he was himself.

During the conversation he helped himself very liberally to the contents of his bottle, whereupon the thirsty one said: "Well, I notice ye're a fine dribbler, but ye're nae guid at passing."

trate more readily when studying. The final result of this remains to be seen.
The most impressive part of the demonstrations was the speed with which they were carried out. Dr. Raginsky simply told a subject that he was going to sleep, and lo and behold, he was asleep. This was hypnotism robbed of the theatricalism which is usually associated with it, with the substitution of scientific speed and efficiency which made it even more admirable.
Hypnotism is an artificially induced sleep, accompanied by heightened suggestibility and a narrowed field of consciousness. It was emphasized that the phenomenon may only be produced when the subject is completely in accordance with it.
The evening concluded with certain demonstrations in response to "challenges" from the audience.

Another rule to be strictly enforced is that a team failing to appear on the Forum ice within fifteen minutes of starting time will forfeit the game. A team that defaults more than one game without giving the Athletics Office 24 hours notice or the Interfaculty manager sufficient reason may be ruled out of the league.
Just in case any team might be short-handed, another clause was inserted that allowed a team to borrow players from their opponents if both managers agree to abide by the results of the game beforehand. The other rules that have been in effect for faculty competition will also apply—namely, only students registered in the faculty are permitted to play for the faculty, and the responsibility of the winning manager for handing in the results within 48 hours to the Athletics Office.

just a happy glow, but affects the whole of one's personal and social life. It is an experience of God both as absolute demand and as final succour, so that while giving the individual a sense of security, it also makes him dissatisfied and discontented with life and the world as they are.
Today in the Union Ballroom Mr. Green will give the third and final talk in the series, commencing at 1:30 p.m.

Students Oppose Liquorless V-day
UBC Undergrads Show Divergence of Opinion On Victory Festivities
Vancouver, Dec. 6. — (CUP) — Students at the University of British Columbia appear to be divided on their ideas on how V-day should be celebrated when it comes — except on one question. Asked if the liquor ration should be lifted, 85 per cent answered yes in a poll taken by The Ubyesey.

Most of the students questioned believed that there should be a change from other days, with the stores and the university closed. Others considered that it would be a day to be thankful for, and that the time should be spent quietly.
Here is a poll of the questions: Students split 50-50 when asked if part of the day be spent in prayer. For closing liquor stores, the votes were: yes 32, no 68. Lift the liquor ration, yes 85, no 15. Places of amusement free, yes 57, no 43. Everything free to servicemen, yes 57, no 43.

Inter-University Debating

Army squad. The team has been missing Bud Farmer greatly this season and his loss has made Dr. Bell shift the forward lines around trying to find a working combination which will meet with the stiff opposition which the other teams in the league have been providing.

Tony Dobell has continued to play outstanding hockey through the last few games and there have been many favourable comments made about his game by a number of neutral observers. With him behind the team they have a sturdy goal-tender on whom to rely.

Steady Defence
The defence has shown considerable ability with Bruce Ward, Bob Broderick and Walt Mingle playing admirably steady games. Unfortunately the forward lines have not been completely arranged and although the boys are playing spirited hockey they do not seem to have been able to manage the precision which should come in the next few games.
As things stand now, Hale, Pitfield and Gallant are slated to start for the Red and White squad against the Army team in the next game. It remains to be seen how Gallant will fit in with these two men, both of whom are standing out in the league for their speed and slick-handling ability. However, this lay-off during the Ice Capades will give Bobby Bell, and his team plenty of time to get their practice. The squad which will face the Army will be far smoother than that which bowed before the Air Force.

The Army team caused considerable surprise when they defeated the Navy so soundly in their last game; it is much stronger and faster than it was at the beginning of the season.

When a carpenter makes a mistake it's just what he expected.
When a lawyer makes a mistake it was just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case all over again.
When a judge makes a mistake it becomes the law of the land.
When a preacher makes a mistake nobody knows it—
But when an editor makes a mistake—the trouble starts.
—Tid Bits London.
The mistress of the house heard the bell ring and saw standing at the open front door a Chinese hawker. Quickly retreating, she called out to the maid:
"There's a Chinaman at the door. You go, Ella."
This was too much for the Chinese who stuck his head into the hall and shouted indignantly:
"You go 'ella yourself!"
